

SHTP March Blog – Hannah Fraser

March has been a strange month so far, as restrictions have come into place from the government and the Museum took the decision to close. Before the restrictions were put into place we discussed tasks we could complete from home. I started by preparing to complete work from home which included getting a lot of the social media posts ready.

The last photo I took of the view from the Museum office. I will definitely miss this view!

I prepared and scheduled social media posts for all of the Museum's sites. This included the 'Fifty Friday's' posts where each week an object from each year it came into the collection is shared across the Scottish Fisheries Museum social media platforms.

I also concentrated more on my Historic Vessel Conservation course and completed a first draft of my first unit.

I was also joined by my assistant Monty and his favourite colleague 'Rattie'. He promised to help me with adjusting to working from home, as long as I pay him in snacks!
